Let us then prosecute our original purpose, and let liberty of speech and the press be taken on us continue our agitation. The theme is as fruitful as ever. The gigantic evil every year develops new enormities, and the popular conscience has lost none of its sensitiveness. What secret or express promises any persons or parties are made to hold their tongues do not compromise us. The slaveholders have succeeded

LINCOLN COUNTY.

The Lincoln County Convention met at Bath
 February 12 and 13, 1852, discussed and adopted
 the following resolutions:

1. Resolved, That as anti-slavery men, we

2. Resolved, That the amount of our obligation to labor for any good object does not depend upon the degree of success attending our efforts, but rests upon the will of God as revealed in his word.

3. Resolved, That all slaveholding, or the holding or treating him as property, is a sin, and that we are to do, in its removal, as we are in principle and practice, in the church and in the land, and under all circumstances, a crying sin against God, and like all other sins, ought to be immediately and vigorously opposed.

4. Resolved, That the obligation to oppose this sin, whether in the church or in the State, is an equal duty to all, and in all its developments to the utmost limits of our ability is universal and preeminent, therefore

6. Resolved, That one of the worst developments of slavery is the wide spread moral generation of hypocrisy, which has infected the church at the North, poisoning the fountain of benevolence, infusing its spirit into our literature, corrupting our institutions, and paralyzing our moral and benevolent energies.

7. Resolved, That we will not receive and anti-slavery christians to withdraw their membership and support from all those churches, and missionary bodies, who refuse, after sufficient warning, to discontinue their services from slaveholders and slaveholding interests.

8. Resolved, That slaveholders being disorderly walkers, are not proper subjects for either the shield of church fellowship. We can expect the peneable overthrow of slavery in this land while the popular religion of the country is the right arm of its support.

 Therefore, That this convention will unite
 the most energetic and the most numerous of subscribers
 to the Inquirer in this country, within the next three months.
 10. Resolved, That it is the solemn duty of the honest man to interpret the shield of justice and religion, in behalf of the free color of the population of the country, whose extermination is decreed as a part of the late infamous compromise measures in favor of slavery.
 11. Resolved, That the Fugitive Slave Act called
 the fugitive law is an outrage on the constitution,
 an insult to freedom and common sense, a triumph of tyranny over the spirit of free government, and a stain on the country, which is a shame to the country, and a disgrace to the

Whereas, The constant dissemination of knowledge on the subject of slavery among the colored people of America, under Providence, has been one of the chief means for the success of the cause of American Freedom; and whereas the means requisite for this purpose must be obtained by the accumulation of small amounts which will benevolently benefit all the friends of the cause of the enslaved—men, women and children, and would greatly appropriate:

Resolved, That a Lincoln County Tract Society be organized for the circulation of such literature among all the families in the county—and that an Executive Committee of five members, who shall constitute the governing body, be appointed.

shall appoint solicitors, male and female, in the several towns; obtain and circulate the tracts, and mail the annual reports, and that one of the committee shall be Treasurer and Depository.

Rev. George Thompson lectured before the convention, giving an interesting account of his labors in Africa, as a missionary.

The meeting was characterized by union of feeling and effort, and a firm determination to sustain the Anti-slavery cause.

JOHN AND THE SNAIL.—A quaint old General, of an active and stirring disposition, had a man to work in his garden who was quite the reverse. "John," said he to him one morning, "did you ever see a snail?"

"Certainly," said Jones. "Then," said the old gentleman, "you must have met him, for you could never overtake him."

FATHER MATTHEW AND HIS COUNTRYMEN.—Father Matthew, in reply to one of the many inquiries he received since his return to Ireland made the following statement:

"After a residence of thirty years in Cork, I did not believe that I could any where find more harrowing illustrations of the ruin and calamities of the Irish peasantry, until I had visited America. There the condition of the drunken emigrant is misery—the bereft of care and industry, he falls a prey to the cupidity of the hard-hearted speculator, and the unfortunate victims of this fatal propensity, the ignorant and ignorant poor, the victims of the knowledge of the countrymen, I would earnestly recommend them to struggle in their native land rather than in this country."

HOSPITALITY.—Mr. Stowell writes to the Western Star, the Mechanic of Worcester, that he has just received word that Alexander, Va., to the winter, his wife being in poor health. The mechanic had a chance to do work enough to support him, but being unable to do work, procured the help of a friend to read and write. The landholders interfered, set fire to and burned his shop, and threatened to burn his house if he did not leave the place. He got away in 18 hours. The poor man, in the rigor of winter, was obliged to return North.
